- d) Beneficiaries of the political refugee status.

Work plan

The work plan fits into the activities of the project “The Socioeconomic Effects of Return Migration”, Reference 2022.01500.PTDC, coordinated by Professor João Pereira dos Santos.

SERM aims at identifying and quantifying the short and the long-term socioeconomic effects of return migration, by exploiting an unprecedented historical episode of forced population repatriation linked to a major event in European modern history. It leverages on comprehensive micro-level data from population censuses and other administrative sources, and relies on several methods from economics and computer science.

We will exploit several state-of-the art methods in economics and computer science to measure the causal effects of return migration from different angles.

Research Tasks & Responsibilities:

- ☐ Develop and carry out literature reviews;
- ☐ Develop and carry out statistical analysis using microeconomic techniques;
- ☐ Develop collaborative research with other project colleagues and research group;
- ☐ Present research outputs at conferences and other dissemination groups, including nonacademic audiences;

Place of work

The activities related to the grant will be developed at UECE/ISEG, Lisbon School of Economics and Management, under the supervision of Professor João Pereira dos Santos.

Duration

The duration of the scholarship is 3 (three) months, with a possibility of 3 (three) months extension.

Monthly stipend

1 741,00€ (tax-free for Portuguese residents)

This stipend is paid under the terms of the table in Appendix I of the FCT Research Grant Regulation, under exclusive dedication according to Article 5 of the Research Scholarship Statute.

Payment of the monthly maintenance allowance is made at the end of each month by bank transfer.

Selection Methods and Criteria

Candidates are assessed through Curriculum Assessment (CA), Motivation Letter (ML), and Interview (I).

The results are expressed on a scale from 0 (zero) to 100 (hundred).
